

futureplaces

the skills to make a difference

placemaking > project management > leadership

a bespoke learning programme that will help you and your team breathe new life into towns, cities and villages...

A way to make the most of your staff, developing placemaking skills; project management abilities; and leadership qualities.

A creative, people-centred service that will equip your team to act as an in-house research, advice and consultancy team, generating practical solutions to the issues you face.

why do you need it?

At a time when the emphasis on value for money is stronger than ever, an organisation needs to make the most of its greatest asset – its staff.

We can save you money by creating a culture where staff are encouraged to develop solutions, there is minimal need for expensive outside consultants, and costly mistakes are avoided.

We will develop your staff's talents and ideas, enabling them to identify practical solutions to problems and to do work that could otherwise be neglected.

how does it work?

futureplaces™ offers training in placemaking, project management and leadership skills.

Our broad approach has been tested and refined through the pioneering Regeneration Academy in Bradford and other projects, but every programme is tailored to your location and circumstances.

We do not stuff people with facts and figures. Instead, we encourage them to consider, explore, and imagine, and to do so in multi-disciplinary teams and groups, so they constantly learn from each other.

At the same time we draw on our expert knowledge to ensure everything is underpinned by the latest proven thinking on what makes a place great.

Our directors are personally involved in every project and we use a wide range of expert speakers and facilitators.

who's it for?

futureplaces™ is for anyone who has a responsibility for the creation and development of place, the services provided in a locality, and the welfare of the people who live there.

This includes:

- Local authorities
- Local Enterprise Partnerships
- Chambers of commerce and other business networks
- Housing providers
- Developers and planners
- Health trusts
- Voluntary organisations
- Educators
- Think tanks

who are we?

futureplaces™ has been developed by the team who lead the Regeneration Academy in Bradford.

We are: Winning Moves, a dynamic and diverse organisational development & improvement consultancy; New Start Plus, a specialist agency for sharing new thinking and good practice led by Julian Dobson, co-founder of New Start magazine; and Beam, a creative placemaking consultancy with expertise in arts, learning and community engagement.
